

What's new in 5.5?

Morello 5.5 contains a number of exciting new features which will allow users to enjoy an even more sophisticated and user-friendly experience. The latest improvements include incredible integration capabilities with common applications and unrivalled search facilities thanks to an agreement with the world's foremost search engine and search optimization provider, Google.

Google Search Appliance

The Google Search Appliance in Morello 5.5 enables users to take advantage the same search capability for their sites and other systems as they do when using Google on the web. The Google Search Appliance will enable users to search through content and other data stored on a company's web servers, file servers, content and document management systems, relational databases and business applications and make it instantly available from a single familiar search box. Despite searching enterprise wide for information, a key benefit is that the Google search will maintain all the authorizations and permissions you have set, which will ensure that the integrity of your content and other information remains unaffected.

The Google Search Appliance is used by a wide range of prolific and innovative companies, including www.apple.com and a large number of blue chip firms, to index and search for results from a number of different repositories.

This plug-in will enable users to have much a tighter integration with the index that Google maintains, beyond the information that can be captured by just crawling a Morello driven website. The plug-in will also allows you to leverage Morello's significant content metadata tagging capabilities, such as the taxonomy browser, KM keywords and summaries and to make that available to the Google algorithm to further refine the relevance of the search.

Word Wizard

Morello has always had a tight integration to Word. This integration enables users to drag and drop items onto their desktop and edit them off-line and to edit items in Word directly from a workflow notification, via the Morello Outlook integration.

In Morello 5.5 this functionality is enhanced to enable users to author a content item in Word, or grab a legacy document, drop it into the Morello Smart Client and then be guided through a simple set of steps that create a new XHTML page from that document.

The final web page could be made to look exactly like the Word document that generated it, including images, tables and styles.

This means that casual contributors will be able to continue to work in a familiar package, yet still play an active part in contributing content, all increasing the levels of user adoption and satisfaction that help ensure a successful implementation. In addition, old, legacy content can be "unlocked" and reused in the new site/s, saving time and reinvigorating the depth and breadth of content available to users.
